

Forecasted Earthquake
[Earthquake in the Northern part of Tokyo Bay (M7.3)]

Minato City Seismic Vulnerability Map

October-2013

Concerning the Seismic Vulnerability Map

The Seismic Vulnerability Map shows the intensity distribution of the shaking caused by an earthquake. Waves transmitted through the ground have regional characteristics and are affected by the stratification condition of strata and valleys, low-lying land or terraces. An engineering analysis was held for the entire area of Minato City, and indicated by the scale of seismic intensity.

The seismic intensity indicated on this map is the estimated average size of shaking forecasted by the seismic intensity or the distance from the epicenter. As such, shaking may vary according to how an earthquake occurs.
